

Welcome to The Phoenix Nest - A Haven for the Brilliantly Bizarre!

Located in the heart of Munich, just a stone's throw from the Technische Universität München (TUM), The Phoenix Nest isn't your average dorm. We're a self-proclaimed collective of tech wizards, caffeine-fueled engineers, and creative thinkers who believe that the best ideas are born at 2 AM over a shared pizza.

Our communal space is less of a lounge and more of a command center. It features a resident 3D printer that's constantly churning out questionable gadgets, a vintage Nintendo Switch for our fiercely competitive Mario Kart tournaments, and a well-loved collection of board games, where alliances in Catan are forged and broken weekly. We pride ourselves on being a collaborative environment; if you're stuck on a project, chances are someone here has a solution (or at least a strong opinion).

We host several legendary annual traditions, including our epic "Code & Conquer" hackathon, the all-night Star Wars Marathon before final exams, and our traditional pre-gaming strategy session for Oktoberfest. We're looking for residents who aren't just looking for a place to sleep, but a place to build, create, and maybe even launch a slightly misguided robotics project. If you've ever debated the literary merits of Frank Herbert's Dune or have a favorite programming language, you'll fit right in.
